regulation of micrnas by natural products and ... - micrnas (mirnas) are highly conserved non-protein coding small rnas, known to contribute to the epigenetic regulation process in various cancer cells, including the regulation of progression, proliferation and metastasis of cancer cells, differentiation of the cells and process of apoptosis. in addition to, they are crucial for the regulation of micrna regulation of epithelial to mesenchymal transition - micrna regulation of epithelial to mesenchymal transition ...

micrnas (mirnas, mirs), a large group of small non-coding rnas, function by binding to the three prime untranslated region (3'utr) of messenger rna (mrna) molecules, triggering the micrnas: small rnas with a big role in gene regulation - micrnas: small rnas with a big role in gene regulation lin he and gregory j. hannon micrnas are a family of small, non-coding rnas that regulate gene expression in a sequence-specific manner. the two founding members of the micrna family were originally identified in caenorhabditis elegans as genes that were required for the timed regulation of micrnas function by circular rnas in human ...
